Bench for Abiko city.

This project arises from the need to dispose of what immediately loses meaning for our society. From the reuse of food containers, an innovative texture will be designed for a new bench for public streets in the city of Abiko. The bench is a single piece of concrete poured into a formwork wrapped with cardboard packaging, the texture of which is transferred to the silhouette of the bench. Through this bench, the image of this element, which otherwise means only waste, takes on a new meaning.
